O wild West Wind, thou breath of Autumn's being,
Thou, from whose unseen presence the leaves dead
Are driven, like ghosts from an enchanter fleeing.

Yellow, and black, and pale, and hectic red,
Pestilence-stricken multitudes: O thou,
Who chariotest to their dark wintry bed

The winged seeds, where they lie cold and low,
Each like a corpse within its grave, until
Thine azure sister of the Spring shall below

Her clarion o'er the dreaming earth, and fill
(Driving sweet buds like flocks to feed in air)
With living hues and odours plain and hill;

Wild spirit, which art moving everywhere;
Destroyer and preserver; hear, oh hear!

Questions and Commentary:

- (1) Identify the poet and the title of the poem. (5 points)
- (2) In what way is the West Wind both a destroyer and a preserver? (15 points)
- (3) Explain the rhyming pattern and the rhythm of the poem, with two lines as examples. (10 points)

III. Translate the following paragraphs. (40 points)

1. Translate the following paragraph into Chinese. (20 points)

Translation and interpreting participate in shaping the way in which conflict unfolds in a number of ways. First, a declaration of war is, after all, “a linguistic act”. Clearly, this verbal declaration has to be communicated to other parties in their own languages; there is no point in the USA declaring war on Iraq without ensuring that the Iraqis and the rest of the world “hear” that declaration. Second, once war is declared, the relevant military operations can only begin and continue through verbal activity. Much of modern warfare is based on coordinating several armies from different countries and linguistic communities; recent examples include the UN in Bosnia and the US command in Iraq. The very process of mobilizing military power then is heavily dependent on continuous acts of translation and interpreting, including—crucially—acts of translation and interpreting that allow military personnel to communicate with civilians living in the region.

2. Translate the following paragraph into English. (20 points)

当然，哲学和宗教的含义并不十分明确，不同的人对哲学和宗教的理解可能全然不同。人们谈到哲学或宗教时，心目中所想的可能很不同。就我来说，哲学是对人生的系统的反思。人只要还没有死，他就还是在人生之中，但并不是所有的人都对人生进行反思，至于作系统反思的人就更少。一个哲学家总要进行哲学思考，这就是说，他必须对人生进行反思，并把自己的思想系统地表述出来。

IV. Choose any ONE of the following questions or topics and fully develop your understanding. (30 points)

- (1) Why should we teach cultural things in our classrooms and what should we teach about culture in our classroom? Please develop your understanding with reference to the relationships between culture and language learning.
- (2) Expound changes of American dream by illustrating some canons of American literature.
- (3) Please elaborate Roman Jakobson’s trichotomy of translation and give your explanations with examples.
